

YOU CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE:
Learn a fun, interactive way to teach noise-induced hearing loss prevention.

Dangerous Decibels is a public health campaign internationally recognized for excellence in hearing loss prevention interventions.

Join us in Portland for the Dangerous Decibels Educator Training Workshop. We will prepare and equip you to expertly present a K-12 classroom program that is proven effective at changing knowledge, attitudes, and intended behaviors in students regarding their hearing health.

This two-day certification workshop (16 hours) is lead by Oregon Health & Science University, Portland State University, and University of Northern Colorado hearing conservation, health communication, educational outreach experts. Participants will receive an educator kit with graphics, simulations, supplies, a script and a sound level meter needed to present the classroom program.

The workshop will include background information on hearing, anatomy, physics of sound, children and noise, etc. Instruction include classroom management, hands-on activities, and an opportunity to deliver the program to instructors for critique and feedback. Workshop instructors are available after the workshop for continued support and as a resource through email or phone. We look forward to your participation.

"5.2 million 6-19 year olds have hearing loss directly related to noise exposure."
